3XRCA female-to-female connector with pigtail and integrated plate, finished in black, from the Simon 400 series. A highly durable component resistant to extreme temperature changes, maintaining proper operation between -5 and +60°C. Simon is a Spanish company that invests significant resources in providing technological solutions to an increasingly demanding society. Today, spaces are being transformed and updated according to our technological needs. Thanks to this connector, we can easily and functionally connect our television and other devices. It features three color-coded inputs: yellow for composite video, while red and white are for stereo audio. Maintenance of this component is truly simple; simply use a soft, dry cloth to keep it looking like new. It is advisable to avoid abrasive products containing chlorine.
